THINGS TO KNOW

The bill now goes to Gov. Cuomo for final approval.

New York state's legislature on Wednesday passed a bill that would make it easier for U.S. congressional committees investigating President Donald Trump to get access to his state tax returns.

The Democratic-controlled state Assembly and Senate voted along party lines on the measure, which would circumvent his refusal to hand over his federal tax returns to Congress.

New York Republicans who opposed the bill called it an abuse of power that fed into the political designs of Democrats in Washington, the Albany Times-Union reported. It now goes to Democratic Gov. Andrew Cuomo for final approval.

Trump has refused to release any of his tax returns, breaking a decades-long tradition of U.S. presidents making their personal finances public to demonstrate that they have no conflicts of interest.

Although the bill does not name Trump, it allows the state Department of Taxation and Finance to share state tax return information with a congressional committee that requests it. Much of the information submitted in New York state tax returns is similar to that on federal forms.

Trump and Democrats who control the U.S. House of Representatives are locked in a battle over their ability to investigate him.

The president is stonewalling multiple congressional investigations by ignoring subpoenas, refusing to allow current and former advisers to testify, and not handing over documents.

For example the U.S. House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee requested Trump's federal tax returns by subpoena but the request was denied by Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin.

Trump's personal home and the headquarters for his business are in New York, requiring him to file state tax returns in addition to his federal returns.

"New York has a unique role to help head off the constitutional crisis brewing between Congress and the White House over refusal to comply with the request for Donald Trump's tax returns," said the bill's sponsor, Sen. Brad Hoylman, according to the Times-Union. "We are affirming Congress' role as a co-equal branch of government and the sacred constitutional principle that nobody is above the law, not even the highest elected official in the land."

In comments to reporters on Wednesday, Trump criticized Democrats for continuing their wide-ranging follow-up to Special Counsel Robert Mueller's Russia probe.

"I don't do cover-ups," Trump said, responding to a charge made by House Speaker Nancy Pelosi just moments prior.

The White House did not immediately respond to a request for comment on the New York legislation. REUTERS

Avenatti indicted for ripping off Stormy, extorting Nike

2 Michael Avenatti's legal troubles escalated on Wednesday as federal prosecutors announced new criminal charges accusing the lawyer and prominent critic of President Donald Trump of stealing from porn star Stormy Daniels and extorting Nike. Prosecutors accused Avenatti, 48, of stealing about $300,000 from Daniels, about half of which has not been repaid, after helping his former client secure a book contract.

They also said he has been indicted on previously announced charges that he tried to blackmail Nike out of more than $20 million by threatening to expose what he called the athletic wear company's improper payments to recruits for college basketball teams it sponsored. The charges were announced by U.S. Attorney Geoffrey Berman in Manhattan. If convicted on all charges, Avenatti could face several hundred years in prison. REUTERS

Chiefs' Mathieu alleged victim in $5M extortion plot

3 A relative of Tyrann Mathieu has been accused of trying to extort $5 million from the Kansas City Chiefs safety. ESPN reported that Geourvon Keinell Sears, 21, allegedly threatened to reveal personal information to TMZ if he didn't receive the money. Documents filed in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Louisiana contend Sears demanded $1.5 million from Mathieu in April, then raised the price to $5 million. While the alleged victim of the extortion plot is identified only by initials in court documents, Mathieu's lawyer, Denise White of EAG Sports, confirmed to KMBC 9 in Kansas City that Mathieu was the target. White said Mathieu is working through a "private and personal family issue." Sears is alleged to have told Mathieu's friends that if the money was not paid, he would "kill you all." Sears is set to appear in court on June 21. REUTERS

Maine 25th state to report measles as outbreak spreads

4 Maine became the 25th U.S. state to confirm a case of measles amid the country's worst outbreak of the disease in a quarter-century, as state medical officials on Wednesday reported that a child was infected but is now fully recovered. The afflicted school-aged child from Somerset County, whose measles case was confirmed on Monday, was vaccinated and had no complications while the disease ran its course, the Maine Center for Disease Control and Prevention said. The report comes as measles cases have erupted across the country, with federal health officials reporting on Monday that 880 people have contracted the disease so far this year. Health experts say the virus has spread among school-age children whose parents declined to give them the vaccine, which confers immunity to the disease. REUTERS

2 Dozen goats assigned to weed-eating duties at Riverside Park

Twenty-four "retired" goats are currently noshing on NYC's invasive species.

letters@metro.us

Earlier this week, hundreds of local residents, news outlets and local schoolchildren packed into Riverside Park at 120th Street to see a herd of 24 goats released into the park.

The spectacle kicked off the Riverside Park Conservancy's GOaTHAM, an initiative to use "retired" goats from a local farm to help clear out a surge of invasive species from a hard-to-access area of the park. From this week until Aug. 30, the team of goats will be noshing on poison ivy, bittersweet, wineberry and more.

This will be the first time goats are being used in this manner in Manhattan. Previously, they were used in Prospect Park and Brooklyn Bridge Park. At Riverside Park, the sloped, two-acre area 119th to 125th streets has been fenced off to ensure the goats are contained and safe. As explained by the Conservancy:

"Throughout the season, the goats will continuously consume the weeds all the way down to the roots, which stunts the plants' normal growth trajectory by making them start all over — only to be eaten again. After a few months, the plants' ability to grow will have been weakened, and perhaps eliminated altogether."

Moreover, goats can consume 25 percent of their body in vegetation, and their fecal matter actually adds nutrients back into the soil. And since they have better knees than people, it's much safer for them to be on these hilly parts.

Interestingly, New

York City's nickname "Gotham" was derived from "Goat Town," a put-down toward the city that Washington Irving popularized when the Upper West Side was still open farmland filled with more goats than people. Not only does GOaTHAM reference this historic moniker, but it also makes a nod to the goat beauty pageants that were once held by beer brewers in Central Park.

The 24 GOaTHAM goats — each with their own name and unique personality — have been profiled on the Conservancy website for fans to vote on their favorite. Their profiles are also hung on a fence in the park for passersby to see. Once their three-month residency is complete, the goats will head back to Green Goats farm in Rhinebeck (this farm has actually been loaning its goats to parks across the country for 14 years). Gardeners for the Conservancy will then plant native plants where the weeds once grew.

NYPD hunt for subway attackers continues

Video of brutal beatdown was released Tuesday by the police department.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
letters@metro.us

The NYPD on Tuesday released a graphic video showing a young man being attacked on a subway and pleaded with the public to help them find the assailants.

NYPD Chief of Detectives Dermot Shea shared the unsettling video on Twitter, calling it a "heinous attack" and asking for information that could help detectives find the culprits. In the video, which has no sound, the victim is seen being brutally beaten and kicked in the head on a subway car.

Although the video made rounds on social media recently, police believe the incident occurred in early November 2018. The attack was unreported to the police. They are still unsure where and why the attack took place.

NYPD

"We believe as we stand here now that that incident took place in New York City. We don't know exactly where ..." Shea told the media Wednesday. "We believe the individual ... went to the hospital, did suffer significant injuries, but again, didn't report it to the police."

In the video, the victim is cornered in the car, and unable to defend himself. He sustained significant injuries including broken teeth, bruising and potentially a concussion, according to police.

The video originated on social media and was sent to the NYPD anonymously. In an interview with the New York Daily News, Chief Shea said investigators spotted the video on Instagram. NBC 4 New York said a concerned passenger also sent them the video.

Police were able to tentatively identify the 22-year-old victim, but they need help finding the suspects. They believe the victim lives in the South and are waiting to speak with him.

Police also believe that the person who filmed the video was involved in the attack.

Anyone with information can contact the NYPD tip line at 800-577-TIPS (8477) or directly message them on Twitter @NYPD-Tips. All calls are anonymous.

Trump blasts Pelosi 'cover-up' accusation, balks on infrastructure

"No one is above the law," the House speaker said, referring to the president.

President Donald Trump fired back on Wednesday at House Speaker Nancy Pelosi's accusation that he is engaged in a cover-up over the Mueller Russia investigation, saying at a hastily arranged White House appearance, "I don't do cover-ups."

Visibly angered by Pelosi's remarks, Trump also said he would not work with Democrats, who control the House of Representatives, on a major infrastructure proposal because of "phony" investigations they are pursuing in Congress.

The Republican president added that he was upset that Democratic lawmakers discussed the possibility of impeaching him before a White House meeting on infrastructure.

Trump repeated his previous rhetoric about Special Counsel Robert Mueller's probe of Russia's interference in Trump's favor in the 2016 U.S. presidential election and whether Trump impeded Mueller's inquiry. "No collusion, no obstruction, no nothing," Trump said. "This whole thing was a takedown attempt at the president of the United States."

Regarding the infrastructure meeting, Trump said, "I walked into the room and I told Sen. [Chuck] Schumer, Speaker Pelosi, I want to do infrastructure. I want to do it more than you want to do it. I'd be really good at that — that's what I do. But you know what? You can't do it under these circumstances. So get these phony investigations over with."

Afterward, at a press conference with Senate Democratic Leader Schumer, Pelosi told reporters Trump may have lacked the confidence to work with Democrats on infrastructure. She said she prays for Trump.

Schumer said watching what happened at the meeting between the president and Democratic lawmakers "would make your jaw drop." He said that when Trump was asked how he would pay for an infrastructure plan, "he had to run away."

As Democrats in Congress debated impeaching Trump, Pelosi said on Wednesday, about an hour before a White House meeting with him, that Trump is engaged in a "cover-up."

The president is stonewalling multiple congressional investigations by ignoring subpoenas, refusing to allow current and former advisers to testify, and not handing over documents, steps that have aggravated a confrontation with Congress.

"No one is above the law, including the president of the United States. And we believe that the president of the United States is engaged in a cover-up," Pelosi told reporters after a morning meeting of House Democrats.

She and other congressional leaders met briefly with Trump just before his appearance before reporters to talk about a potential bipartisan infrastructure development plan, although a firm proposal for funding any such effort has yet to emerge. The meeting lasted only a few minutes.

Trump and Democrats who control the House are engaged in a high-stakes power struggle over their ability to investigate him, with the president increasingly asserting that his advisers need not respond to lawmakers' inquiries.

Their probes range from whether Trump obstructed justice during Special Counsel Robert Mueller's inquiry into Russian meddling in Trump's favor in the 2016 U.S. presidential election to his personal finances and businesses.

As the confrontation has escalated, Pelosi and other senior House leaders have been trying to tamp down demands from more junior Democratic lawmakers to kick off impeachment proceedings, urging them to give court enforcement actions time to progress.

How To Know If Hormonal Replacement Therapy Is Right For You.

When it comes to understanding hormones or how hormones affect our overall health, we often get confused or at times misguided with preconceived notions that our hormonal peak is only relevant to our daily lives at the peak of our youth and pubescent stage.

However, that limited notion is entirely outdated as more women and men are finding the need to understand and be in tune with their hormonal states to restore hormonal equilibrium for each important stage in life. Through years of study, both women and men alike experience a variety of menopausal symptoms (women) or andropause symptoms (men) that can include changes in fertility, aging, weight maintenance, sexual desire and function, dermatological influx, bone strength (Osteoporosis) and urological concerns.

To see that so many areas in your day to day health is dictated by something as simple as a hormonal deficiency poses the question that we at New York Medicine Doctors Center seek to ask and answer which is - What exactly is causing this deficiency? And most importantly, what can we do as a team working alongside our patient to integrate a treatment that is long lasting and realistic.

This is why we are committed to bringing our patients the most advanced time tested methods of hormonal optimization.

We believe not only in providing a safe environment for our patients to talk about uncomfortable issues but to also thoroughly assess for effective results. We provide the following methods and treatments to help restore your hormonal imbalances:

Virginia governor's role in blackface photo 'unclear'

Northam had claimed to be impersonating Michael Jackson.

Virginia Gov. Ralph Northam's former medical school was unable to determine his role in a racist photograph that appeared on his 1984 yearbook page, according to a report released on Wednesday following a three-month inquiry.

The photo sparked weeks of political chaos in the state after it was published by a conservative website in February, setting off scandals that embroiled Virginia's three top Democrats. It shows one person in blackface makeup and another in the robes of the white supremacist Ku Klux Klan.

Northam initially admitted to having appeared in the photo and apologized. He later changed his story, saying he did not believe he was pictured, but had performed in blackface to impersonate the singer Michael Jackson at about that time.

That led his alma mater, the Eastern Virginia Medical School, to hire the law firm McGuire Woods to investigate how the photo appeared on Northam's yearbook page.

"No one we interviewed told us the governor was in the photograph, and no one could positively state who was in the photograph," the report said. "We found no information that the photograph was placed in error, though we acknowledge there is scant information on this subject thirty-five years after the fact."

Northam repeated his belief that he was not in the "racist and offensive" photograph in a statement released on Wednesday after the report was made public. He also apologized for his contradictory statement in February.

"I felt it was important to take accountability for the photo's presence on my page, but rather than providing clarity, I instead deepened pain and confusion," his statement said.

TEETH, LEGS NOT A MATCH?

Northam, a white 59-year-old former U.S. Army doctor, resisted February calls to step down from within his own party in Virginia — seen as a key swing state for the 2020 presidential election — as well as from at least five Democratic presidential candidates. AP/WIDEWORLD

Why Aren't Doctors Telling Knee Arthritis Sufferers About These Two Often Successful Treatments?

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

NYC - If you suffer with knee arthritis pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications. With minimal or no results

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis a lot of knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers. Patients travel from all over the state to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation - the good and the bad....

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid."

Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during viscosupplementation treatments... doctors precisely inject directly into the knee joint.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the procedure is slightly off, the formula will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NYC Pain MD use advanced digital imaging so they visually guide the injection accurately into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that performing joint injections without imaging miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have had prior viscosupplementation without this special digital imaging without good results - this may be the exact reason why.

That's why NYC Pain MD even takes it one step further. They do not just use one form of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation "medicines" also come in several different formulas.

Just like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. While many doctors only use one formula, the experts at NYC Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what the best one is for you.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

#2 Radiofrequency Neurotomy

This treatment is called, "Radiofrequency Neurotomy." RF for short. RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are known as "Genicular nerves."

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to the Genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, Genicular Neurotomy (GRF) is performed for long term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published November 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1, 4 and 12 weeks, respectively. No patient reported a post-procedure adverse event during the follow-up period. RF neurotomy of

Advanced Imaging Allows Doctors To Pin-Point Treatments And Relieve Knee Arthritis Pain

Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers? Research shows joint injections done without advanced imaging misses the joint about 30% of the time. Now doctors can put lubricating fluid directly into the arthritis joint that may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

Genicular nerves leads to significant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee OA pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication, physical rehab or viscosupplementation do not offer good enough results.

RF may be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

But - RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be debilitating and this procedure may be the only thing that helps and give you after surgery relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like to schedule a screening, just call 877-380-8537.

The screenings fill up fast every month. This screening is no cost and there absolutely no obligation.

More good news: for qualified candidates, insurances and Medicare often cover these treatments.

'American Taliban' to be released from prison

Several lawmakers objected to John Walker Lindh's early release.

John Walker Lindh, the American captured in Afghanistan in 2001 fighting for the Taliban and vilified as a national traitor, is to be released early from a federal prison on Thursday while some U.S. lawmakers worry he still poses a security risk.

Lindh, photographed as a wild-eyed, bearded 20-year-old at his capture, will leave a federal prison in Terre Haute, Indiana, on probation after serving 17 years of a 20-year sentence, according to a prison official.

Now 38, Lindh is among dozens of prisoners set to be released over the next few years after being captured in Iraq and Afghanistan by U.S. forces and convicted of terrorism-related crimes following the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

His release brought objections from elected officials who asked why Lindh was being freed early and what training parole officers had to spot radicalization and recidivism among former jihadists.

Melissa Kimberley, a spokeswoman for the Terra Haute prison, could not confirm details of Lindh's release other than it would be on Thursday.

U.S.-born Lindh converted from Catholicism to Islam as a teenager. At his 2002 sentencing he said he had traveled to Yemen to learn Arabic and then to Pakistan to study Islam. He said he volunteered as a Taliban soldier to help fellow Muslims in their struggle or "jihad." He said he had no intention "to fight against America" and never understood jihad to mean anti-Americanism.

Lindh told the court he condemned "terrorism on every level" and attacks by al-Qaeda leader Osama bin-Laden were "completely against Islam."

While in prison, Lindh successfully lobbied to overturn a ban on group prayer by Muslim prisoners. REUTERS

I was waiting in line for a concert. I had been there for a while to get a good position when a group of four people walked up to where I was in line to cut me to be with their friend. I got over it pretty quickly. It wasn't too many people. But then, three more people cut to be with that group! That is just ridiculous!!!!!! I earned this spot!! Stuff like that really ticks me off.

Lion Babe find their 'Cosmic Wind'

The duo talk their hypnotic second album ahead of their show in Industry City.

patrick.king@metro.us

The electronic, neo-soul duo Lion Babe are coming into their own. Ever since forming in 2012, the group, consisting of singer Jillian Hervey and producer Lucas Goodman, have released a steady stream of catchy and danceable tracks that also emit the mood and slinky elegance of mid-'70s soul. With the release of their second album, "Cosmic Wind," back in March, the band has made the transition from a group that simply releases a string of fun singles to one that aims to demand space on your record shelf.

Each song on the album blends into each other with ease to create a cohesive suite, with Hervey's powerful voice guiding the listener into the warm worlds created by Goodman's beats.

"I think that was definitely something we were trying to go for more with this project," says Goodman, of the more focused and streamlined approach to "Cosmic Wind." "The first album, we basically made one song, then we signed the deal, and then we wrote our first album. So we had a lot of experimenting to do, learning to do, as far as making music because we hadn't experienced it and doing it with each other yet. So I feel like there was a lot going on in our last record as far as sounds and things, and that's just because we were trying a lot of stuff out."

Hervey, who happens to be the daughter of Vanessa Williams and Ramon Hervey II, could not agree more with Goodman's desire to shake things up. The band had returned to New York, where they originally formed, to write and record the new album. According to Hervey, the city's energy provided a much-needed push for the group.

"I would just agree that definitely the cohesiveness was deliberate, and just the idea conceptually of what we wanted to do when we first started — we never really had a map, like Lucas said, for our first album," says Hervey, reiterating Goodman's point. "Also, because we were back in New York, I actually think the New York sound has a lot of different influences for us. The vibes, etc. Lucas had been DJ'ing a lot so we were also listening to what would be good in a party setting and then we have been playing a lot live also. We wanted to make sure that all of those elements were being touched on. Our goal is really being able to start the record and finishing it, instead of starting all over again. Because when we both think back to our favorite records, and things that have stood the test of time, it's the 'album,' so you don't need to skip anything and the whole sound is the whole story. So that was definitely the goal this time around."

The band will be opening this year's City Farm Presents Summer Series at Industry City for one of the summer's first great outdoor concerts.

John Turturro on uncovering the truth in 'The Name of the Rose'

Turturro stars in the eight-part series, adapted from the classic novel, on SundanceTV.

patrick.king@metro.us

Is being satisfied with an answer actually more important than hearing a truth that is too hard to swallow? At what lengths should we go toward self-preservation or censorship to silence parody or critique of societal norms? These are some of the larger questions posed in Umberto Eco's classic novel "The Name of the Rose." The novel, originally released in 1980, has sold over 50 million copies worldwide and has been adapted into an eight-part limited series premiering tonight on SundanceTV with actor John Turturro as its lead.

The story is set in Italy in 1377 as William of Baskerville (Turturro), a Franciscan Monk, travels with his novice Adso von Melk to a secluded monastery in the Alps. The purpose of their visit is a theological disputation surrounding heresy and Aristotle's a mysterious and controversial book. While William and von Melk are at the monastery, they get caught in the middle of a series of murders and begin to learn many of the dark secrets many of the monks had been trying to keep hidden.

The show was shot on location in Italy and directed by Italian director Giacomo Battiato. When Battiato approached Turturro to play the part of William, Turturro was intrigued but felt as though he needed to lend his talents to the writing room as well to make sure that the story's timeless themes of resistance under puritanical rule would make their way onto the screen.

"My interest, why I started working on the script with Giacomo Battiato, was to put as much of Eco as we could into the series because I didn't really want to do a watered-down version," says Turturro. "It's a murder mystery but it has all of these important elements like how could a man be a man of faith, like William, and be a man of science?"

He's a philosopher, but he's a man of action. He was an inquisitor, but he's a person who renounces violence. He values women even though he's amongst all of these men who fear women and demonize them. I thought the most interesting thing in the whole book was this understanding that the power of knowledge of what he says [takes] the form of the "anti-christ," which is any form of absolutism. I thought these things are wonderful and we could get them in if we had more than two-and-a-half hours to do it."

"The Name of the Rose" also stars Michael Emerson as the monastery abbot and Rupert Everett as the chilling inquisitor Bernard Gui. It takes viewers on a chilling and winding mystery that poses questions that are still relevant given the recent shifts toward authoritarian politics in many of the world's leading societies.

"We've seen it not just today, but throughout history," explains Turturro. "When any sort of fanaticism, or fascism, absolutism or totalitarian regime comes in, they attack intellectuals. They attack the library. They burn books. Knowledge is such a powerful tool. It's a powerful tool for a poor person to improve their lot in life."

And that is exactly what that kind of censorship and persecution is meant to do: keep a certain demographic oppressed in order to rule with ease.

"That fear that you see in a very, maybe, a more primitive way is still paramount in many cultures and societies today, in subtle ways," says Turturro. "I love when you go back 1,000 years and you are exactly where you are right now. Because I think that teaches you that people aren't inventing this stuff. It has a long line in it. Any time you can figure out who you are or what you are, it's empowering. Because you don't look at yourself the same way. You can say, 'I'm all of these things, I'm not one thing.' We all have our strengths and weaknesses, but these themes are universal themes. I think he was very smart, Eco, to put it into a murder mystery that really revolves around the protection of a book not being released into the public consciousness, or a way of thinking into the public consciousness. You can go right from Aristotle's 'Poetics' to 'Saturday Night Live' if you want to [laughs]."

"The Name of the Rose" premieres tonight on SundanceTV at 10 p.m. ET.

BOSTON CALLING

5 things you need to know about Boston Calling 2019

The fest returns this Memorial Day weekend.

Get ready to rock, because Boston Calling is back for its 10th installment this Memorial Day weekend. Here are five things you need to know ahead of the three-day music fest's return May 24-26 at the Harvard Athletic Complex.

1. Who's set to perform?

Boston Calling always has a stacked lineup of performers, so it's no surprise that this year's fest will also feature a ton of big names, as well as a slew of talented, up-and-coming local acts. Kicking things off on Friday, Twenty One Pilots will headline the first night of Boston Calling and will take over the green stage beginning at 9:10 p.m. that evening. Other notable Friday performances include Greta Van Fleet, who's set to rock out on the red stage at 7:50 p.m., and CHVRCHES, who'll jam out on the Delta stage at 8:20 p.m.

Things kick into high gear on Saturday, as psychedelic rockers Tame Impala will headline the fest's second night, performing on the green stage at 9:20 p.m. The day will also feature appearances by Odesza, Anderson.Paak & The Free Nationals, Hozier, Betty Who and "Old Town Road" star Lil Nas X.

Hip-hop megastar Travis Scott will help wrap up Boston Calling as the Sunday headliner and is scheduled to take the green stage at 9:30 p.m. The final day of the fest will also include performances by Logic, Brandie Carlile, Chromeo, plus local rockers Guster.

2. More than just music

Boston Calling has turned into more than just a music fest in recent years, adding all kinds of interesting features and performances. Take part in outdoor games, check out the various art installations and make sure to grab a great view of the festivities from atop the 100-foot Ferris wheel.

Fans will also get the chance to enjoy a number of comedy and artistic performances throughout the weekend at the indoor arena stage. The Boston Ballet will showcase their amazing dance skills on Saturday and Sunday. Both days will feature appearances by Imogen Heap, who'll perform a spoken word piece while using Mi.Mu gloves. Don't forget to have a laugh with the all-star lineup of comedians, including current and former "Saturday Night Live" stars. Friday will feature Fred Armisen while Milton native Jenny Slate will take the stage on Saturday. Meanwhile, current cast members Melissa Villaseñor and Weekend Update co-host Michael Che will perform on Sunday.

3. What to eat

Aside from all the great acts, Boston Calling has a stacked collection of food and drink vendors to keep you energized all weekend long. General admission highlights include Bon Me, Café Beatrice, Love Art Sushi, Roxy's Grilled Cheese, Shuck Truck, The Smoke Shop, Sweet Cheeks and Tasty Burger. Pony up for platinum tickets in order to feast on special culinary offerings by some of the city's best chefs. Friday's platinum food experience will be crafted by Porto's Jody Adams, Saturday's will be helmed by Toro star Jamie Bissonnette, while Island Creek Oyster Bar's Jeremy Sewall will take over on Sunday.

4. How to get there

If you're traveling to the fest this weekend, make sure to leave your car at home unless you snagged platinum tickets, which come with complimentary on-site parking. The rest of us are encouraged to use ridesharing apps or use public transportation. The Red Line stop at Harvard Square is just a 10-minute walk from the main entrance located at 65 N. Harvard St. in Allston.

5. Ticket info

If you haven't purchased tickets yet, there are still a few options left for fans to score. Three-day general admission and VIP tickets are still available for $289 and $649 respectively. One-day tickets for each tier are still available as well. Single-day general admission tickets are $119, VIP are $239 and platinum are $649.

Clint Frazier's emergence will only help Yankees on trade block

The young outfielder is making noise in the Bronx.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Clint Frazier, one of the "B Bombers" that has helped keep the New York Yankees sitting pretty atop the American League East, continues to show his worth to the organization and the rest of a seemingly interesting MLB.

The 24-year-old has taken full advantage of the slew of injuries that befell the Yankees this season. New York saw all three of its starting outfielders go down at points this season in Aaron Hicks, Aaron Judge, and Giancarlo Stanton. Both Judge and Stanton are inching their way back to the big leagues.

Frazier has helped cushion the loss of the big boppers by slashing .268/.300/.518 with eight home runs and 23 RBI in 31 games before Wednesday night's tilt against the Baltimore Orioles.

It's further confirmation that Frazier can consistently produce in the majors, which was a reason why he was so highly touted during the developmental stages of his minor-league career.

Clint Frazier is showing flashes of stardom with the Yankees. GETTY IMAGES

The production is even further appreciated considering his career was called into question at times last year after suffering multiple setbacks from a concussion.

However, Frazier's continued emergence is only going to lessen his chances of remaining a Yankee.

Once Judge and Stanton return, Frazier becomes expendable, making him a top-tier trade target given his age. His name had cropped up in trade talks dating back to last summer and throughout the offseason.

It looks like teams are doing their due diligence as scouts from the San Francisco Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates were at Tuesday night's game against the Orioles. They were treated to a show as Frazier hit a pair of home runs with five RBI in the 11-4 win.

There is little doubt that the Yankees are going to be pursuing top-end pitching talent this summer and Frazier could quickly become the centerpiece of such a deal. While Masahiro Tanaka is expected back shortly, James Paxton and Luis Severino remain on the shelf with injuries while JA Happ continues to struggle with inconsistencies and the long ball.

Domingo German has stepped up in ways no one expected him to, becoming an early AL Cy Young candidate. However, a true, top-two starter with a proven track record will be vital for the Yankees' long-term rotational success.

At surface level, the Giants' presence at Yankee Stadium offers the dream of getting a crack at San Francisco ace Madison Bumgarner — one of the greatest postseason pitchers of all-time. The Giants are in desperate need of outfield help and Frazier would become the crown jewel of their talent pool.

However, Bumgarner submitted an eight-team no-trade list earlier this month and the Yankees were on it. So even if the Yankees had the best possible offer on the table for the Giants, the 29-year-old could still block it.

Another name to file as a pipe dream is Washington Nationals ace Max Scherzer. With the franchise nosediving through the early portions of the 2019 season, including a series loss to the Mets this week, the idea of the Nationals trading Scherzer continues to pick up steam.

With two years left on his contract, the three-time Cy Young Award winner would call for a king's ransom to help fuel a sudden rebuild. Yet the Yankees have the assets to pull it off, as seen in their overwhelming depth exhibited during the season of injuries.

Frazier would have to be joined by the likes of top prospects in outfielder Estevan Florial along with pitchers like Albert Abreu and Luis Medina. That still might be enough as the idea of trading Scherzer is still a shocking one considering he's a top-three pitcher in baseball.

Las Vegas tabs Knicks as favorites to land Kevin Durant

It's still far too early to tell where Golden State Warriors superstar Kevin Durant will be playing his basketball come the 2019-20 season.

While he's been linked to the New York Knicks for the better part of the past year, another team looks poised to make a serious run for the 10-time All-Star.

The New York Times' Marc Stein reported on Tuesday that the Los Angeles Clippers have "emerged as an equally dangerous threat to the Knicks to sign Durant away from Golden State."

At the moment, it looks like it will be a four-horse race to sign Durant this July as the Brooklyn Nets could also join the pursuit alongside the Knicks, Clippers, and Warriors.

Durant doesn't have any known favorite as of yet, as his manager Rich Kleiman told the Wall Street Journal that he is "100-percent undecided" on where he'll be playing next year.

"He really doesn't know, and I really don't know," Kleiman added.

That hasn't stopped noted gambling site Bovada to release its odds on what jersey Durant will be wearing in October.

And it's good news for Knicks fans:

KNICKS -125

WARRIORS +175
CLIPPERS +500
NETS +600
LAKERS +650
MAVERICKS +2200

The Knicks will have the money to not only offer Durant a max deal, but they could also have the cap space to bring on another superstar.

Their options remain wide-open at the moment considering they have multiple avenues to take when it comes to acquiring a possible No. 2 for Durant. New York holds the No. 3 pick of the NBA Draft next month, which could be used in a package deal to get New Orleans Pelicans star center, Anthony Davis.

If the Knicks want to hold onto the pick and take Duke's RJ Barrett, then GM Scott Perry could go out on the free-agent market and go all-in for point guard Kyrie Irving.
